

A question I asked myself was if loud songs contributed to increasing the energy to their own songs. I placed the variables loudness on the x-axis and energy on the y-axis. I placed loudness in color. From the positive trajectory, I do think that energy is measured by loudness.